

I am against limiting xmradio's programming capability. At this time, communication is of utmost importance in the United States. I don't think anyone can foresee where terrorist activity is going to happen next. Communication may become everything in the event of another attack. Hindering that would be reckless and would show lack of foresight. Please do not limit satellite radios ability to transmit information on any level. I appreciate you reading my comments. Thank you,
Beth MacVittie